The Gods of Peg na is the first book by Anglo-Irish fantasy writer Lord Dunsany, published on a commission basis in 1905. The book was reviewed favourably but as an unusual piece. One of the more influential reviews was by Edward Thomas in the London Daily Chronicle. The book is a series of short stories linked by Dunsany's invented pantheon of deities who dwell in Peg na. It was followed by a further collection, Time and the Gods, and by some stories in The Sword of Welleran and Other

The gods have set a brightness upon the farther side of the Things to Come that they may appear more felicitous to men than the Things that Are. To the gods the Things to Come are but as the Things that Are, and nothing altereth in Peg na. The gods, although not merciful, are not ferocious gods. They are the destroyers of the Days that Were, but they set a glory about the Days to Be. Man must
